

PSYCHOTHERAPIST- CLIENT SERVICES AGREEMENT

Welcome to my practice. This document (the Agreement) contains important information about my professional services and business policies. It also contains summary information about the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), a federal law that provides privacy protections and client rights with regard to the use and disclosure of your Protected Health Information (PHI) used for the purpose of treatment, payment, and health care operations. HIPAA requires that I provide you with a Notice of Privacy Practices (the Notice) for use and disclosure of PHI for treatment, payment and health care operations. The Notice, which is displayed in the waiting room and available upon request, explains HIPAA and its application to your personal health information in greater detail. The law requires that I obtain your signature acknowledging that I have provided you with this information at the end of this session. Although these documents are long and sometimes complex, it is very important that you read them carefully before our next session. We can discuss any questions you have about the procedures at that time. When you sign this document, it will also represent an agreement between us. You may revoke this Agreement in writing at any time. That revocation will be binding on me unless I have taken action in reliance on it; if there are obligations imposed on me by your health insurer in order to process or substantiate claims made under your policy; or if you have not satisfied any financial obligations you have incurred.

MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Psychotherapy is not easily described in general statements. It varies depending on the personalities of the therapist and client, and the particular problems you are experiencing. There are many different methods I may use to deal with the problems that you hope to address. Psychotherapy is not like a medical doctor visit. Instead, it calls for a very active effort on your part. In order for the therapy to be most successful, you will have to work on things we talk about both during our sessions and at home.

Psychotherapy can have benefits and risks. Since therapy often involves discussing unpleasant aspects of your life, you may experience uncomfortable feelings like sadness, guilt, anger, frustration, loneliness, and helplessness. On the other hand, psychotherapy has also been shown to have many benefits. Therapy often leads to better relationships, solutions to specific problems, and significant reductions in feelings of distress. There are no guarantees of what you will experience.

The first phase of therapy will involve an assessment of your needs. I will offer you some first impressions of what our work will include, such as treatment goals, if you decide to continue with therapy. You should evaluate this information along with your own opinions of whether you feel comfortable working with me. Therapy involves a large commitment of time, money, and energy, so you should be very careful about the therapist you select.

If you have questions about my procedures, we should discuss them whenever they arise. If your doubts persist, I will be happy to help you set up a meeting with another mental health professional for a second opinion.

You have the right to a safe setting and to know that sexual relations between a mental health provider and a client or former client are a violation of the law (RSA 330-A:36).

MEETINGS

If psychotherapy is begun, I will schedule one 50-minute session (one appointment hour of 50 minutes duration) at a time that is mutually agreeable. Once an appointment hour is scheduled, you will be expected to pay for it unless you provide 24 hours advance notice of cancellation [unless we both agree you were unable to attend due to circumstances beyond your control]. It's important to note insurance companies do not provide reimbursement for cancelled sessions. [If it is possible, I will try to find another time to reschedule the appointment.]

PROFESSIONAL FEES

The hourly fee is $200.00 each for two intake sessions, $150.00 for individual therapy and $200.00 for couple/family therapy. In addition to therapy appointments, I charge this amount for other professional services you may need, though I will break down the hourly cost if I work for periods of less than one hour. Other services include report writing, telephone conversations lasting longer than 10 minutes, consulting with other professionals with your permission, preparation of records or treatment summaries, and the time spent performing any other service you may request of me. If you become involved in legal proceedings that require my participation, you will be expected to pay for all of my professional time, including preparation and transportation costs, even if I am called to testify by another party. Because of the difficulty of legal involvement, I charge $150.00 per hour for preparation and attendance at any legal proceeding.

CONTACTING ME

Due to my work schedule, I am often not immediately available by telephone. While I am usually in my office between 9 AM and 5 PM, I probably will not answer the phone when I am with a client. When I am unavailable, my telephone is answered by confidential voicemail. I will make every effort to return your call as soon as possible. If you are difficult to reach, please inform me of some times when you will be available. If you are unable to reach me and feel that you can't wait for me to return your call, contact your family physician or the nearest emergency room or call the Riverbend Mobile Crisis Unit at 1-844-743-5748.

LIMITS ON CONFIDENTIALITY

The law protects the privacy of all communications between a client and a mental health professional.

In most situations, I can only release information about your treatment to others if you sign a written Authorization form. There are other situations that require only that you provide written, advance consent. Your signature on this Agreement provides consent for those activities, as follows:

- I may occasionally find it helpful to consult other health and mental health professionals about a case. During a consultation, I make every effort to avoid revealing the identity of my client. The other professionals are also legally bound to keep the information confidential. If you don't object, I will not tell you about these consultations unless I feel that it is important to our work together. I will note all consultations in your Clinical Record.
- You should be aware that I practice with other mental health professionals and that I employ administrative staff. In most cases, I need to share protected information with these individuals for both clinical and administrative purposes, such as scheduling, billing and quality assurance. All of the mental health professionals are bound by the same rules of confidentiality. All staff members have been given training about protecting your privacy and have agreed not to release any information outside of the practice without the permission of a professional staff member.
- I also have contracts with Office Support Systems. As required by HIPAA, I have a formal business associate contract with this business, in which it promises to maintain the confidentiality of this data except as specifically allowed in the contract or otherwise required by law. If you wish, I can provide you with the names of this organization and/or a blank copy of this contract.
- Disclosures required by health insurers or to collect overdue fees are discussed elsewhere in this Agreement.
- If a client threatens to harm himself/herself, I may be obligated to seek hospitalization for him/her, or to contact family members or others who can help provide protection.

There are some situations where I am permitted or required to disclose information without either your consent or Authorization:

- If you are involved in a court proceeding and a request is made for information concerning the professional services that I provided you and/or the records thereof, such information is protected by the psychologist-client privilege law. I cannot provide any information without your written authorization, or a court order. If you are involved in or contemplating litigation, you should consult with your attorney to determine whether a court would be likely to order me to disclose information.
- If a government agency is requesting the information for health oversight activities, I may be required to provide it.
- If a client files a complaint or lawsuit against me, I may disclose relevant information regarding that client in order to defend myself.

There are some situations in which I am legally obligated to take actions, which I believe are necessary to attempt to protect others from harm and I may have to reveal some information about a client's treatment. These situations are unusual in my practice.

- If I have reason to suspect that a child has been abused or neglected, the law requires that I file a report with the Division of Children, Youth and Families. Once such a report is filed, I may be required to provide additional information
- If I suspect or have a good faith reason to believe that any incapacitated adult has been subjected to abuse, neglect, self-neglect, or exploitation, or is living in hazardous conditions, the law requires that I file a report with the appropriate governmental agency, usually the Department of Health and Human Services. Once such a report is filed, I may be required to provide additional information
- If a client communicates a serious threat of physical violence against a clearly identified or reasonably identifiable victim or victims, or a serious threat of substantial damage to real property, I may be required to take protective actions. These actions may include notifying the potential victim, contacting the police, or seeking involuntary hospitalization for the client.

If such a situation arises, I will make every effort to fully discuss it with you before taking any action and I will limit my disclosure to what is necessary.

While this written summary of exceptions to confidentiality should prove helpful in informing you about potential problems, it is important that we discuss any questions or concerns that you may have now or in the future. The laws governing confidentiality can be quite complex, and I am not an attorney. In situations where specific advice is required, formal legal advice may be needed.

PROFESSIONAL RECORDS

The laws and standards of my profession require that I keep Protected Health Information about you in your Clinical Record. You may examine and/or receive a copy of your Clinical Record, if you request it in writing within 30 days. Because these are professional records, they can be misinterpreted and/or upsetting to untrained readers. For this reason, I recommend that you initially review them in my presence, or have them forwarded to another mental health professional so you can discuss the contents. [I am sometimes willing to conduct this review meeting without charge.] In most circumstances, I am allowed to charge a copying fee of $15.00 for the first 30 pages or 50 cents per page, whichever is greater.

You should be aware that I keep a Clinical Record. It may include information about your reasons for seeking therapy, a description of the ways in which your problem impacts on your life, your diagnosis, the goals that we set for treatment, your progress towards those goals, your medical and social history, your treatment history, any past treatment records that I receive from other providers, reports of any professional consultations, your billing records, and any reports that have been sent to anyone, including reports to your insurance carrier. Insurance companies can request and receive a copy of your Clinical Record. Treatment records of family/couple sessions contain information about each person.

Clients should be aware that each adult person equally has a right to obtain the Clinical Record I comply with professional guidelines in governing how client records are safeguarded in the event of my unexpected death.

CLIENT RIGHTS

HIPAA provides you with several new or expanded rights with regard to your Clinical Records and disclosures of protected health information. These rights include requesting that I amend your record; requesting restrictions on what information from your Clinical Records is disclosed to others; requesting an accounting of most disclosures of protected health information that you have neither consented to nor authorized; determining the location to which protected information disclosures are sent; having any complaints you make about my policies and procedures recorded in your records; and the right to a paper copy of this Agreement, the attached Notice form, and my privacy policies and procedures. I am happy to discuss any of these rights with you.

YOUR GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

Cornerstone Family Resources wants to maintain a good relationship with each client. Cornerstone has adopted the following procedure for handling problems, grievances and complaints. You are encouraged to discuss your grievance first with your clinician. If a satisfactory resolution is not reached, or if you feel uncomfortable doing this, you may discuss the matter further with staff clinicians Dr. Vicki Compitello or Ms. Lori Lonsdale. A copy of the Mental Health Patient Bill of Rights is posted in our foyer and in each clinician's office for your review.

MINORS & PARENTS

A parent or guardian (with limited exception) must authorize the treatment of a minor. Only when a child turns 18 does control of treatment, information and records revert to the child. Although communications with adult clients are confidential, in the treatment of minors, parents (even non-custodial parents) have a right to access and authorize release of information. It is my preference to undertake treatment only with consent of both parents, if possible. If we determine that it is appropriate or necessary to proceed with therapy with only one parent providing consent, the non-signing parent still has a legal right to a copy of the minor's records if requested, unless his/her parental rights have been terminated. Both parents may be expected to attend the initial meeting with or without the child depending on the discretion of the individual therapist. A meeting with each parent may also take place separately if it cannot be worked out together.

In cases where a divorced referring parent does not have contact with the other parent due to a court order, a copy of the order should be brought to the first session. The therapist's role is to provide psychotherapy services NOT to assess fitness for custody, serve as an advocate on other issues or act as an expert witness.

Children are often anxious to share what happens in therapy with their parents. It is very important to my progress with your child that he/she feels safe and protected. For this reason, it is my policy to respect the "healing-in-progress" and not comment on the specifics of what occurred during therapy.

(Nor do I provide copies of the child's Clinical Record to the parents in the case of individual therapy with a child). By signing that you have read the Psychotherapists/Client Agreement, you are agreeing to these limitations.

Because children often find it difficult to share negative information with a therapist, it is sometimes my policy, to the extent it is possible, to meet briefly with the parent accompanying the child for an update of information. Although a parent may provide me with information when he/she drops off the child for therapy, it is important for the parent to understand that the child, not the parent, is the client. Furthermore, to the extent that I believe it is necessary, the information you provide to me may be incorporated into my therapy records, and thus could be viewed by the other parent.

OLDER ADOLESCENTS (15 and older)

These adolescents often attend sessions without an accompanying parent.

Unless we agree otherwise, parents of adolescents are welcome to initiate contact with the therapist at anytime, but it is preferable for them to let their son/daughter know this is the case. It is at the therapist's discretion whether the therapist meets with a parent or legal guardian without the adolescent present.

BILLING AND PAYMENTS

You will be expected to pay for each session at the time it is held, unless we agree otherwise or unless you have insurance coverage that requires another arrangement. Co-payments related to Insurance Reimbursement are due at the time services are provided. Payment schedules for other professional services will be agreed to when they are requested. [In circumstances of unusual financial hardship, I may be willing to negotiate a fee adjustment or payment installment plan.]

If your account has not been paid for more than 60 days and arrangements for payment have not been agreed upon, I have the option of using legal means to secure the payment. This may involve hiring a collection agency or going through small claims court which will require me to disclose otherwise confidential information. In most collection situations, the only information I release regarding a client's treatment is his/her name, the nature of services provided, and the amount due. [If such legal action is necessary, its costs will be included in the claim.]

INSURANCE REIMBURSEMENT

In order for us to set realistic treatment goals and priorities, it is important to evaluate what resources you have available to pay for your treatment. If you have a health insurance policy, it will usually provide some coverage for mental health treatment. I will fill out forms and provide you with whatever assistance I can in helping you receive the benefits to which you are entitled; however, you (not your insurance company) are responsible for full payment of my fees. It is very important that you find out exactly what mental health services your insurance policy covers.

You should carefully read the section in your insurance coverage booklet that describes mental health services. If you have questions about the coverage, call your plan administrator. Of course, I will provide you with whatever information I can based on my experience and will be happy to help you in understanding the information you receive from your insurance company.

Due to the rising costs of health care, insurance benefits have increasingly become more complex. It is sometimes difficult to determine exactly how much mental health coverage is available. "Managed Health Care" plans such as HMOs and PPOs often require authorization before they provide reimbursement for mental health services. These plans are often limited to short-term treatment approaches designed to work out specific problems that interfere with a person's usual level of functioning. It may be necessary to seek approval for more therapy after a certain number of sessions. While much can be accomplished in short-term therapy, some clients feel that they need more services after insurance benefits end. [Some managed-care plans will not allow me to provide services to you once your benefits end. If this is the case, I will do my best to find another provider who will help you continue your psychotherapy.]

You should also be aware that your contract with your health insurance company requires that I provide it with information relevant to the services that I provide to you. I am required to provide a clinical diagnosis. Sometimes I am required to provide additional clinical information such as treatment plans or summaries, or copies of your entire Clinical Record. In such situations, I will make every effort to release only the minimum information about you that is necessary for the purpose requested. This information will become part of the insurance company files and will probably be stored in a computer. Though all insurance companies claim to keep such information confidential, I have no control over what they do with it once it is in their hands. In some cases, they may share the information with a national medical information databank. I will provide you with a copy of any report I submit, if you request it. By signing this Agreement, you agree that I can provide requested information to your carrier.

Once we have all of the information about your insurance coverage, we will discuss what we can expect to accomplish with the benefits that are available and what will happen if they run out before you feel ready to end your sessions. It is important to remember that you always have the right to pay for my services yourself to avoid the problems described above [unless prohibited by contract].
